4) Please describe any changes that you would suggest to improve the tryout process.

(The last five responses are given)

- One all city tryout strong consideration going to player's/parent's desire. If the child is competent enough to join that team and the team needs a player that plays that position. Every group getting an equal chance at good players.
  - WAY too short a time to properly analyze skill levels. It was clear that some coaches were aware of the skill levels of some players and focused on those known commodities.
  - I dont even know where to start- it was a mess
  - Sounds like things will change next year. Last year's process where Emerald City took their pick somehow after one session was painful to watch. Also the idea that parents/kids pick a first choice team based upon limited information that they were stuck with for the remainder of the tryouts did not seem fair (to all the teams and the kids). We know someone that picked the Liga team since they live in South Seattle. Since there were too few kids that picked Liga and they were stuck with their choice, their son lost any chance of getting on another team.
  - I'm to new to this to comment on any improvements.

8) Please provide any suggestions you have to improve communication.

(The last five responses are given)

- We would have liked to have had more information about select soccer which is new to our family. What all is involved (could have provided a parent from an older team to answer questions); what are the different levels; level of commitment (we have a couple kids that missed much of the summer); overview of tournaments, the season and post season; and lastly what will be coming with the new Seattle United.

- none
- None it is all awesome always!
- Spiros ROCK!
- i have never heard from them.
